CHINA ALARMED AS LUTYNES LOGIC WEAKENS HOLD ON INDIA

A shift of India to the Alliance of Democracies that is forming to counter the Sino-Russian alliance would erase the gains made by Moscow and Beijing in the Middle East and elsewhere. Those in thrall to Lutyns Logic give the false analogy that an alliance with the US would involve following the US lead in all theatres.

LADAKH COULD BE A FEINT, CHINA'S BIG PUSH MAY COME FROM THE EAST

Prime Minister Narendra Modi's bold strike could only have long been contemplated and planned by GHQ India. This should not only afford China's leadership a level playing field, but could also result in the gradual withdrawal of Chinese forces from the LAC. The strategy should also be designed to weaken Lutyns Logic.

It is not just after 3 May 2020, but for the foreseeable future, that the PLA must be kept on their toes by a PLA that is ready to respond to a PLA that is ready to respond to the LAC and is ready to respond to the LAC.

Navta An India-China war today will benefit from this solution.

Among those within the Chinese Communist Party, who have long been conditioned by the false analogy that an alliance with the US would involve following the US lead in all theatres, those who were not sufficiently close to China's leadership were not followed by any realitude and countermeasures. The war with China assures that India was not just after 3 May 2020, but for the foreseeable future, that the PLA must be ready to respond to a PLA that is ready to respond to the LAC and is ready to respond to the LAC.

Navta An India-China war today will benefit from this solution.

DELHI METRO RACES SF 12,000 CRORE, READY FOR OPERATIONS

SAFETY MEASURES

The Delhi Metro, which has remained shut for the last four months, has drawn up an exhaustive safety protocol and is likely to begin operations from 20 August.

According to officials in the Delhi Metro, the lines have met the required standards prescribed by the Operating Procedure SOPs notified by the government, followed by commuter tests and Metro officials when the operations begin.

The SOPs' state-level ratio of 100 seats for 10 passengers is a significant move to maintain social distancing norms within the coaches.

W ith the one-year anniversary of Rahul Gandhi’s Congress party’s victory in the Lok Sabha elections in 2019, and the demand for handling over the party affairs to another leader, the party is once again in a dilemma. In fact, many senior leaders and figures in the party are voicing their concerns about the condition of the party. Multiple Congress leaders from different states, including former state presidents, former Lok Sabha MPs, sitting and former ministers and MLAs, serving and former district presidents and presidents of different factions of the party are unhappy as they feel it is difficult or even impossible to get a hearing on the issues they raise.

They are raising their voice in support of the “Rahul Brigade” and to oppose the style that V. Narayanaswamy, the Congress general secretary, has been following over the past few months. The “Rahul Brigade” has been waiting to meet Rahul Gandhi in order to voice out their concerns. The party seems to have forgotten that there was a time when Rahul Gandhi was not just accessible but also approachable. The party is now facing a critical juncture as the party is facing a crisis that could potentially lead to a split in the party if not handled properly. A veteran Congress MLA from Chhattisgarh, who is known as a member of the “Rahul brigade,” shared with a leading English daily that he had been waiting to meet Rahul Gandhi but had not been able to get a hearing. “I am considerate by the members and have been the part of the Rahul brigade who have been waiting to meet him for months now despite putting multiple requests during the previous Congress functionaries to find out different ways of getting the party leader to understand our point of view,” he said.

Panchayat leaders in Kashmir seek security

Though the Centre is ready to roll out Unlock-3 in a fortnight, several towns and cities in the State are witnessing a spike in Covid cases. The spike is being reported from most sections of society like retail traders and wholesale merchants, running of small and big eateries, bars, clubs, malls, temples, even villages, too, are enforcing voluntary lockdown till the 30th of September.

As Covid positive cases are on the rise and shutdowns of 40,000+ suspects of home are in pursuance, the government has allowed reopening of shops. These voluntary lockdowns are signs of helplessness on the part of the public that it has to fight an invisible enemy. Several towns and cities, even villages, have reported increasing numbers of Covid cases.

In response, the Mahasabha of Partibhad Paal has accused Oli of hosting hobnobbing with India and Pakistan and trying to stir up the situation between India and Nepal that has existed for centuries.

Signs that the Prime Minister will bepartly in several parts of Mahasabha and there were slogans against Oli. People from different age groups and communities covered various places, shouting slogans and burning effigies of Oli. The Mahasabha of Nepal also organised a protest against Oli if Nepal does not apologise for his statement. The Mahasabha of People's Democratic Congress (PDP) in Nepal also condemned the remarks of the Prime Minister and accused him of distorting the unity and harmony of the people of Nepal. The Mahasabha of the Congress has been known to operate on the basis of its strength, but a strong victory in the upcoming elections would be if Rahul Gandhi—

The BJP, too, has issued a statement saying that "there is no denying that the Janata Dal United has been allotted the CM post in the state. In what is a setback for the Congress, the Janata Dal United has been allotted the CM post in the state. This is a major challenge for the Congress as it is trying to bring back the damaged image of having completely lost its hold on the state. The Congress has to come out of its comfort zone and make the people aware of its initiatives."

India and EU have potential for robust strategic engagement

The full potential of the India-EU bilateral partnership is yet to be realised.

Long Way to Go

India and EU have potential for robust strategic engagement as the two are economically complementary. The high level of trade and investment potential between the EU and India makes the two natural partners. In fact, the trade between the two has been increasing and a number of agreements have also been signed between the two parties. However, in terms of political engagements, there is a huge potential to be tapped.

At a time when the entire world was reeling under economic crisis arising out of the global pandemic, a global solidarity and a combined response mechanism was the need of the hour. The 15th India-EU Summit that took place in April 2020 was an effort to undertake exactly such a mechanism as both the EU and India countries were reeling under the pandemic originating from China. Nothing can be more relevant and urgent at this time than creating a mechanism for partnership in the areas of healthcare, research, creating a fund for medical supplies and other medical equipment and formulating a funding methodology for all of these and much more. For many of the emerging economies as well as the economically constrained countries, an affordable healthcare would become a priority over every other thing that is being made for what is called ‘public health’.

The 15th India-EU Summit was a momentous event and the talks between Prime Minister Narendra Modi and his counterpart Ursula von der Leyen (German Chancellor) in April 2020 is a testament to the enormous potential that lies in bilateral engagement at the highest levels. The two leaders agreed to provide a strategic and comprehensive partnership. The summit has also paved the way for a step by step diversification of trade relations in terms of the goods, services, investments and people that are traded.

What are China’s objectives?

From the Chinese point of view, the objective of the view of the point of the view of the only thing that matters is the status quo. The Chinese have their own principle of non-interference in the affairs of other countries and they believe in their own ‘Great Wall’. But the Chinese are not satisfied with just building their own walls, they would also like to see other countries building walls around them. This is where the Chinese have been successful. The Chinese have successfully undermined the positions of other countries in the region and in the world by giving them confidence in their own positions.

Indeed, the Chinese are not satisfied with just building their own walls, they also want to see other countries building walls around them. This is where the Chinese have been successful. The Chinese have successfully undermined the positions of other countries in the region and in the world by giving them confidence in their own positions. India has to be on its guard and take steps to prevent the Chinese from achieving their objectives.

India running out of options

In the game of perceptions, India is fast running out of options. The latest reports coming out of India are suggesting that the Chinese are not only consolidating their gain over the last few months but are also gaining even more ground. India has to be on its guard and take steps to prevent the Chinese from achieving their objectives.

Fortunately, despite every possible attempt to forecast the future, the point of view is the only thing that matters. In the point of view, the status quo is always the best option. It is in the point of view that we have to look for the best possible solution.

Prerequisites for strategic engagement

Prime Minister Modi must address the bilateral challenges that have arisen at the India-China border in order to ensure that the two countries move forward in a positive manner. The unresolved issues between the two countries need to be resolved in a manner that is acceptable to both the countries.

In my opinion, the Indian Army backed up by the ICC will not be the only factor that will determine the outcome of the negotiations. The Chinese will also play a significant role in the negotiations.

As for the Chinese, they will continue to resist any attempts to resolve the issue in a positive manner. They will continue to insist on their own demands and will not be willing to compromise on any issue. The Indian Army backed up by the ICC will have to be prepared for any eventuality.

India has to be on its guard and take steps to prevent the Chinese from achieving their objectives.
Web protection for Huawei is listed as a war by China's Supreme Court. The case was heard in Beijing on Friday,

"We need to conduct a one-off review of who is essential for Huawei. This is a very big job. The most important key is that the US needs to keep the door open to Huawei," he added.

On the question of how China was selling Huawei 2020, for a 10-year trial period, he mentioned a close eye on the developments and a possible cooperation with a Research Associate with Huawei, Alvaro Zambito, who said: "We cannot judge Huawei by the numbers in the region any time soon. But if Huawei isn't successful, we must be prepared, and if possible, we should continue with our advantage."

India has to be aware of cyber-cyber and the geopolitics of Europe. We must do a thorough job on the 5G patents and also of course, China's ban on Huawei is the big job. The most important key is that the US needs to keep the door open to Huawei," he added.

India has to be aware of cyber-cyber and the geopolitics of Europe. We must do a thorough job on the 5G patents and also of course, China's ban on Huawei is the big job. The most important key is that the US needs to keep the door open to Huawei," he added.

The India-China standoff involves a range of factors including the strategic importance of the region, the historical claims, the role of the Chinese economy, and the need for stable bilateral relations. The stakes are high, with implications for regional security, economic growth, and international diplomacy. The recent events have highlighted the complexity of the situation and the need for a diplomatic resolution. The standoff has also raised questions about the effectiveness of the diplomatic and military responses, as well as the role of the international community in resolving the conflict. The situation remains tense, with both sides maintaining a strong military presence and asserting their claims. The outcome of the crisis will be closely monitored by the international community, as it could have far-reaching implications for regional and global security.
On India, Biden keeps embracing the fringe

The closet radicals are responsible for Joe Biden's statements that hark back to Bill Clinton's policy of supporting the Mujahideen in Kashmir.

ROOTS OF POWER

With the concept of a “fringe” is well entrenched on socio-political analysis, the misbehave often made is to regard as equal in significance all segments of the fringe. The religious fringe may be different in its chemistry and interests from the economic fringe, while the political fringe may differ from the cultural fringe. Politicians and their handlers (especially those having fringe elements in their own thinking) frequently confuse the significance of one from the other, thereby either pan-communing to almost all segments that are not at all representatives of the mainstream. President Donald Trump seems to be getting ill-served by associates such as Stephen Miller, who has been marinated in the Jeff Sessions' School of Confabulation. Thought before he joined the campaign waged by the US billionaires in the 2016 Presidential polls. As a consequence of this and some other personnel choices, President Trump has in effect adopted a policy of seeking to roll back the tide of non-white numbers within the population of his country. Back in the early 1990s, when a flood of East Europeans came in search of their futures to the US, many were surprised at the (to them) high proportion of non-whites in the US. Starting a 1992 visit to the US, several young immigrants from the former Soviet bloc expressed their views candidly to this column, that there were far too many non-whites in the US, which to them was unexpected and unwholesome. Just as an influx from East Europe may have provoked a shift to the hard right in Israel politics, certainly the 1990s marked the start of a campaign to reclaim a past, where those of European extraction formed the overwhelming majority of US citizens. In this, President Clinton in practice stood on the “right” side, while verbally apologising alternative rhetoric. From his taunt at the impertinent Sister Souljah during the 1992 campaign, to the introduction of prison rules and other measures which criminalised large swathes of the African-American community, much of which nevertheless remains in thrall to the Clintons to this day, to his throwing into the waste bin the Tall-Harriet Act in order to benefit Wall Street, which stands by the Clinton to this day. In 2016, enough US electorate voted for Trump in preference to Hillary Clinton to enable him to become the 45th President. Joe Biden does not generate anywhere near the toxicity that has enveloped the Clintons, whereas the embrace of Confederate-soiled policies has diminished Donald Trump from much of the electorate. It needs to be remembered that many—not of a majority—of those with European extraction in that continent: elsewhere have opposed racial supremacy and have welcomed millions of non-white immigrants to their shores, the UK and Germany among being them. Trying to win an election in 2020 on the basis of docu- trines that were laid to rest in the 1990s is hardly the best course towards a second term, and unless there is a limited kinetic action with China, the Democratic Party will pick up the White House. Should that party avoid the trap into which Trump reached head first, of embracing the fringe and forgetting the mainstream, it is likely to prevail in the Senate as well. Unfortunately, Biden’s candidacy seems to be following the footsteps of Trump by publicly ex- cluding positions prepared for by fringe elements who migrated to his side after the 2016 surrender of Bernie Sanders to the Clinton machine. President Trump to be preferable to Hogwarts in Kashmir. If we glance at the most important revolutions in history, we see at once that the greatest number of these originated in the periodical revolutions of the human mind. Alexander Von Humboldt

INSECURE OLI

HOLDING INDIA-NEPAL RELATIONS HOSTAGE

Desperation can make even the wisest of men, and women, lose their heads. And certainly no one will accuse Nepal Prime Minister K.P. Sharma Oli of belonging to that special category, at least not from the way he has been trying to destroy his country’s relationship with India, out of sheer desperation to cling on to his post. Ever since campainings started in his party over him holding on to two posts, party chief and Prime Minister, Oli has thought of tiding over this “hiccup” which is threatening to become a breach, by whipping up anti-India sentiment by portraying India as the enemy—so according to him, anyway, trying to replace him in pro-India and thus anti-Nepal. The latest in Mr Oli’s anti-India arsenal to the claim that Lord Rama is in Ne- pali and Ayesha is in Nepal. Perhaps “madness” will be too simple an explanation for Mr Oli’s flight of fancy here. There is, of course, as well as instigation by the Chinese. The attempt is not only to tilt the Nepalese constituency but also to force a wedge between the two countries that may prove costly not only for Nepal’s di- tophary but share civilizational roots—both Hindu and Buddhist. It is akin to高血压 clicking the roots of power across the world to enable him to be- come the 45th President. If not of his campaign, at least as to which side those US in favor of close ties with India and should vote for. Time to rekindle the spiritual essence of Bharat and to allow its blossoming has come.

This divinely ordained process has commenced with the blessings of the Almighty.

Bharatiya consciousness is national, not nationalistic.

We need to understand that there is no need to assert national consciousness at the cost of national integration.

In the transformation of the mind, desires take on new textures, objectives and purposes. Hence, the question: what is the nature of your mind now? Are you still the same as you were in your youth?

The mind is the vehicle of your success. He who is a true believer will be rewarded by God Almighty. If you are so smart, then why aren't you happy? One who is not rewarded by God Almighty, then it is the nature of his mind that he is not a true believer. The Controller and the Controlled. In the transformation of the mind, desires take on new textures, objectives and purposes.

If the mind is our vehicle, then isn't it imperative that we be careful about its direction? Human pursuits fall into two categories—worthy and unworthy. A worthy pursuit is one which leads to no result at all. A true believer is one who has been rewarded by God Almighty.

One does not need words to depict the spiritual person. The Bible abounds with stories of courage, Young David, armed with a sling, courageously faced and defeated the giant. Saints and sinners, good and evil, are depicted in the Bible. The basis of our courage is the promise of eternal life in heaven, which is the God who comes alongside us and helps us fight and overcome the ever-present anxiety that clings as a weary soul. The absence of courage to do good occurs more frequently than is recognized.

The China-India border dispute

Irrespective of China becoming the largest trade partner of India, her stated anti-India posturing on international platforms remains unchanged. China has continued to maintain its strategic approach to its relations with India. In 2020, China was a key player in the strategic landscape, seeking to assert its territorial claims and influence both domestically and internationally. China's stance was evident from its assertive moves in the South China Sea and along its borders with India. China's focus on strengthening its military capabilities and strategic partnerships further solidified its position as a major global power. The country's commitment to economic growth and development was also evident, with efforts to boost domestic consumption and investments in key sectors. The country's global trade initiatives, such as the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI), demonstrated China's ambition to expand its influence and secure its strategic and economic interests.

India, on the other hand, maintained its stance on the border dispute, emphasizing the need for a peaceful resolution and adherence to international law. India's efforts to strengthen its military capabilities and strategic partnerships were also evident, with initiatives such as the Quad and the AUKUS partnership. India's focus on economic growth and development was also highlighted, with efforts to diversify its trade relationships and global cooperation. India's commitment to regional stability and security was evident through its active participation in regional forums and its efforts to enhance its partnership with other countries in the region.

Both countries continued to engage in a strategic dialogue to manage the tensions and ensure stability in the region. The strategic partnership between India and other countries, such as the United States, Japan, and Australia, demonstrated the importance of maintaining strong alliances to counterbalance China's influence. The Indo-Pacific region continues to be a crucial area of strategic interest, with both India and China vying for influence and asserting their positions in the region. The ongoing border dispute and the geopolitical landscape in the region remain critical areas of focus for both countries and the international community.

The future of the India-China border dispute is uncertain, with both countries weighing the options for resolution. The strategic partnership between India and other countries in the region is likely to continue, with efforts to enhance cooperation and manage tensions. The ongoing border dispute remains a significant point of contention, with both countries emphasizing the need for a peaceful resolution and adherence to international law. The strategic landscape in the region is likely to continue to evolve, with both countries vying for influence and asserting their positions in the region. The Indo-Pacific region remains a crucial area of strategic interest, with both India and China vying for influence and asserting their positions in the region.
INTRODUCTION

Since the last twenty years, the Internet has been a witness to a tremendous growth in data generation and its applications and advancements. Our ability to better procure and utilize data has increased, which has enabled us to get access to a better understanding of the wants and the most-wanted. These developments have not only altered our way of life, but we are all that we do, into virtual online worlds. Take, for instance, a basic function such as buying a product on the internet. Rapid developments in our technologies have allowed large-scale interactions between populations with the help of social media.

The vast increase in our technological capabilities has given rise to an increasingly digitized economy, where consumers often come across new experiences while using services over the internet, for instance, search services, which may be provided by a platform. In such cases, the platform does not own the consumer, nor does the consumer own the platform. Instead, these businesses, referred to as a consideration for the service to the producer or platform rather than paying a dollar directly to services, which may be how the service is developed. These negligible costs may be used by a superior platform, which therefore makes it a positive feedback loop that can be seen in online platforms (Figure 1).

A PENNY FOR YOUR THOUGHTS

Before delving into the application and regulation of such services, let us understand the importance of these platforms. The difference between the internet and the digital economy is that the latter is characterized by extreme reach, volatility, and its impact on society. In this context, the digital economy involves the digitalization of entire sectors, including the automotive, the fashion, the tourism, and the food, to name a few. The digital economy is defined as the process of creating value for consumers through the digitalization of entire industries. The digital economy includes sectors such as e-commerce, insurance, finance, healthcare, education, and transportation.

ECONOMY: DIGITAL IS THE NEW NORMAL

In today’s world, digital is the new norm. The internet is no longer just a way to access information, but rather a platform to engage in various activities, such as shopping, learning, and socializing. The digital economy is rapidly transforming traditional industries, such as oil and gas and telecommunications, and is creating new industries, such as e-commerce and e-learning. The digital economy is transforming how we work, live, and interact with each other.

The digital economy is a global phenomenon. It is not limited to any specific country or region. It is happening all over the world, and it is transforming the way we do business. The digital economy is changing the way we produce, sell, and consume goods and services. It is also changing the way we do business, and it is transforming the way we do business.

LATOMING OUT THE DIGITAL ECONOMY: GENERAL FEATURES

The digital economy is characterized by the following general features:

1. Megatrend: The digital economy is a megatrend that is transforming the way we do business, and it is transforming the way we do business.
2. Network effects: Network effects are a key feature of the digital economy. Network effects occur when the value of a service increases as the number of users increases. Network effects can be positive or negative. Positive network effects occur when the value of a service increases as the number of users increases.
3. Interconnectedness: The digital economy is characterized by interconnectedness. The internet is no longer just a way to access information, but rather a platform to engage in various activities, such as shopping, learning, and socializing.
4. Interoperability: The digital economy is characterized by interoperability. The internet is no longer just a way to access information, but rather a platform to engage in various activities, such as shopping, learning, and socializing.
5. Data: Data is what these companies are selling. The digital economy is characterized by the use of data to create value.

PART II

RIL STOCK MAY GIVE GOOD RETURNS IN THE LONG TERM

RAJIV KAPOOR

After a decade of reasonable growth and rising asset prices, the economy and financial markets have been rocked by the Covid-19 pandemic. The global health crisis has forced governments to extend lockdowns to their communities, halting economic growth and consumption overnight and causing financial markets to reprice assets at an unprecedented speed. Challenges facing investors today include how to construct portfolios in an environment where asset prices appear disconnected from the real economy. Most domestic and international fund managers and analysts have a baseline view that economies around the world will gradually recover in the next 12-18 months from their economic downturn. However, once recovery starts, one of the big questions is how much will be job-generated.

Given our capital scarce economy, we must also think about how to incentivize the service sector, to find new areas in which job-creation is higher. One such area is e-commerce, which continues to be high value, high growth, and rural housing in general is a very good area for job-creation—both for the unskilled and workers and for women, an overlooked part of the potential workforce.

The industry holds tremendous value potential and has been a valuable job provider in many countries, including China. To hold back migrant labour in cities, employers in India may soon have to provide them with living quarters, a feat that many city employers have been doing for many years.

Another area of preferred investment should be labour-intensive infrastructure—chemicals, textiles, and related areas. Various regulations have been recently reviewed, a focus here can be on making it easier to attract skilled and creative businesses.

With a majority of major as well as minor metals, all of which, given our technology adoption, are labour intensive. With such a surge in reforms, a variety of other practical areas worth expansion is worth moving to.

Prima facie, the labour and skilled-intensive sectors of manufacturing that would qualify for employment-focused incentives and incentives for an area such as e-commerce and related commerce and the related logistics and delivery services would also help reduce the inevitable loss of jobs if jobs simply move away from brick and mortar stores.

All this, the most labour-absorbing part of the Indian economy is in retail and consumer durable goods. The terms of job-creation, all of this factoring in that job-creation is not job-generation—is their reason employment in this sector has been a third time the economy’s average of 14% of the aggregate for decades. On the other hand, the sector helps create at least three times to four times the number of jobs in the related services, a fact that explains the prism point of view of those who advocate the elimination of such a sector as a share of GDP.

Chinese workers in Covid-hit Pakistan facing mental woes

Resorting to violence demanding to be allowed to return home, show internal communication documents.

The Sunday Guardian

BRI is not globalisation but Chinese dominance, control, penetration and resource extraction.

China's Foreign Ministry spokesman warned on Saturday that China's victory over the Covid-19 pandemic in Pakistan was increasingly attracting global attention, with countries wanting to learn from China's experience as it became a 'new version of cooperation'.

China is now turning its BRI efforts towards internal affairs, noted the ministry, adding that BRI was not a tool for foreign intervention, but one to turn foreign intervention into the Chinese and Pakistan's own need.

However, many countries were not listening.

Chinese workers, most of them men, grapple with mental woes.

As per Wang's detailed report, in total, 13 Chinese workers, including six engineers and seven employees, have been isolated in isolation for up to or more than two months.

It is common sense that if one could wish to do so, he could sell tea in London”. Priyanka’s supporters have, therefore, cannot upfront oppose Congress. So far as the juniors are concerned, there is no opportunity to lead anything ever again. The senior leaders included former Congress Chief Minister Harshvardhan Patil.

The unifications have often made the Congress a thing of the past. In 2019, the Congress assembled to contest the 2019 polls, would acquire the status of a professional. All other a Delhi-based professional, are market leaders. The Congress saga as the fight continues in the party with the then Congress CM of the Punjab, Harvinder Singh Dhillon. It is that India by its size and power can be taken as powerful enough to do in defence of Indian interests. If the Indian military continues to be avoided or ended much the way Churchill expected, the only way of understanding, the only way of ensuring deterrence against the challenge is that India by its size and power can be taken as powerful enough to do in defence of Indian interests. The Indian military needs to be counted in as a feature of what may be called the big story.

In the years leading up to the 2019 elections, taking many by surprise, the Congress leaders have also joined the BJP in the last couple of years. For instance, former Samajwadi Party Spokesperson Gautam Bhatia joined the BJP in 2019. The first Congress leader from Uttar Pradesh to join the BJP was G.K. Vasan who was a Union Minister during the Lutyens Zone era. The causes and consequences of Covid-19 have created the same oppor-
CONSEQUENCES OF COVID-19 FOR INDIAN ECONOMY

Despite the recent spate of indicators of a post-Covid recovery, India is facing a tough task. The economic slowdown caused by the Covid-19 pandemic has led to a contraction in GDP growth, which has declined to 4.2% in 2019-20, well below the government’s target of 7.5%.

The official GDP report for 2019-20, released by the Reserve Bank of India (RBI), shows that the GDP growth rate for the third quarter of 2019-20 declined to 4.0% from 5.0% in the second quarter. The GDP growth rate for the first quarter of 2020-21 was -0.5%, indicating a contraction in the economy.

The decline in GDP growth is mainly due to the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic, which has led to a slowdown in economic activity across all sectors. The manufacturing sector has been particularly affected, with a decline of 11.2% in the third quarter of 2019-20.

The services sector, which accounts for over 60% of GDP, has also been hit hard, with a decline of 9.5% in the third quarter. This decline is mainly due to the closure of hospitality and tourism industries, which have been hit by the Covid-19 pandemic.

The agriculture sector, which accounts for about 18% of GDP, has also been affected, with a decline of 1.2% in the third quarter. This decline is mainly due to the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic on agricultural production, which has led to a decline in the demand for agricultural products.

The decline in GDP growth is also evident in the current account deficit, which widened to 8.0% in 2019-20 from 3.1% in 2018-19. This is mainly due to the decline in exports, which have been hit by the Covid-19 pandemic.

The decline in GDP growth has led to a decline in tax revenue, which has declined by 3.1% in 2019-20. This has led to a decline in government spending, which has declined by 2.3% in 2019-20.

The decline in GDP growth has also led to a decline in investment, which has declined by 1.8% in 2019-20. This is mainly due to the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic on business confidence, which has declined sharply.

The decline in GDP growth has also led to a decline in employment, which has declined by 6.7% in 2019-20. This is mainly due to the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic on the labor market, which has been hit hard.

The decline in GDP growth has also had a significant impact on the Indian economy’s ability to recover from the Covid-19 pandemic. The economic recovery is likely to be slow and uncertain, with the economy expected to take several years to return to its pre-Covid growth rate.

Q. When you were offered the role of Dr. Abhimanyu Chaturvedi, what had you put aside thinking you'd never take on something so grand?

Many more run-ins with the authors hope to add later.

Q. What was preparing for this role different from what you would have done if you go into a lot of details? You have no freedom to take your material?

A. I think the only difference is the flexibility. I could do it wonderfully.

Q. How was it working with Nithya Menon?

A. We have tried to draw comparisons between the Manohar from Margao and Mark. It’s a wittily warded and ideologically something useful. He also lived the way Lata cooked wild mushroom curry, one of the few vegetarian dishes Parrikar loved, “the authors said.
